of Justice, whose very authority to try we did not admit?" ! continued in this state of mind for some time; but Barinda from my nest cell, began to argue with ine by means of ticks and thumps on the adjacent wall common to us both saying that it would not be right on my part not to appeal, while all the others did. The jail authorities having disallowed all free commu-nication amongst ourselves, we had to resort to this under-hand trick, privately arranging for a code of signs that could only be under-stood by ourselves, so that the authorities could never detect what consultations went on amongst us politicals. Barinda said that it was he only, that was mostly to be held responsible for what-ever had transpired, and it would be folly on my part if 1 were to place a single more straw, over and above what was already lying on his back, so that it came almost to the breaking point. Was it not my duty he said-to sign the appeal form, in spite of the moral objection that lay behind the question considering the relief he would feel when he came to find that there

was to be at least one precious life less lost out of the total? Moreover my parents and people at home began to try all possible means